

Talent driven culture.

Mechanical Engineer

Ref.^a T20257

Our client, a prestigious company specializing in the supply of products and services in the areas of simulation, training, testing and maintenance support, is looking to recruit a mechanical design development engineer to join the team developing simulators and advanced training systems.

Location: Charneca da Caparica, Portugal

Accountabilities:

- The candidate will be assigned to one or more projects developing training systems and simulators and will be responsible for gathering requirements, mechanical design and monitoring the production of training and simulation systems.

Requirements & Qualifications:

- Academic background in Mechanical Engineering (Bachelor or Master Degree);
- Good knowledge of SolidWorks;
- Experience in mechanical design (even in an academic setting);
- Experience in mechanical assembly (even in an academic setting);
- General knowledge of control systems is valued;
- Programming knowledge, particularly in C/C++, is valued;
- Proficiency in English;
- Excellent teamwork skills;
- Strong organizational skills and sense of responsibility;
- Ability to work under pressure;
- Availability to travel when necessary.

If you meet the above requirements, please send your application to the email: careers@qsr.consulting with the reference T20257_Rec_Mechanical Engineer

Offer:

- Salary package appropriate to the experience presented;
- Integration into a company with strong references in the national and international training and simulation markets;
- Initial and ongoing training;
- Integration into a young and dynamic team;
- Integration into a company that respects the environment and values sustainability, as well as the development and well-being of its employees, actively promoting their personal growth.